

Sirs, I signed up for the "NO-CALL LIST" because I did not want unsolicited telephone calls from ANY BUSINESSES, and that includes financial institutions, regardless of whether or not I have ever done business with them in the past or, are currently doing business with them. It has been a true relief not to pick up the phone to hear recorded messages, day after day, at lunch and dinner in particular. I do not wish to have to PAY extra for CALLER ID, to preview all calls before picking up my phone. These people make me feel as though I am under seige when the phone rings.

If banks and financial institutions cannot gain enough new customers and make enough money through NON-INVASIVE advertising methods, they should go out of business or get a new advertising agency.

PLEASE, DO NOT give them an exemption to the NO-CALL LAW! It is of no use if you amend it for one group. By the time all groups are through, it will be "gutted".

Why show us what a paradise it not to have these irritating calls, if you even entertain the idea of taking it away in only a year or two?

Please do not allow this imposition to return and again disrupt my life on a regular basis.

Thank You,

Frankie Niedhammer
